

Know your rights!

Union Stewards are union activists who are trained to answer your questions about AUPE and your collective agreement. Stewards can help you resolve a wide range of problems and issues with your Employer.

One of the most important roles of Union Stewards is to represent you with management. Often, Union Stewards can resolve workplace problems with ease. However, if a problem proves to be more difficult, or a Union Steward is not available, the AUPE Member Resource Centre can assist you.

Contact a Union Steward or the Member Resource Centre if:

- You have questions about your Collective Agreement
- You are facing discipline
- There's a problem with your pay or benefits
- You have a health and safety concern
- You are being bullied or harassed
- You need support in WCB, Return to Work, or Duty to Accommodate issues
